MISS HOUSER LEADS WOMEN IN LONG SWIM

Many Contestants Quit
Race as Temperature
Goes Down

ON BOARD PRESS BOAT
AVALON, Catalina Channel, Jan.
15.—At 11:10 tonight George Young was still in the lead and swimming strongly at a point about four miles off the mainland at Point Vincente.
Norman Ross was reported about a mile behind the Canadian and still going strong.

Margaret Houser of Long Beach, one of the younger entrants in the race, was reported three and one-half miles behind Ross.

Young was slightly in the lead.
Behind them scattered over a wide area and trailing as far as two miles to the rear swam less than twenty-five of the 103 sturdy men and women who had slipped into the sea at Isthmus Point, Catalina Island, at 11:22 this morning.

Among them were six or seven of the seventeen women who entered the grueling battle with the waves.

Leading them was Miss Clara-belle Barrett of New York state,
who remained in the English
Channel 22 hours last year.

As the field of powerfully muscle athletes gradually decreased, it seems possible that the final duel will be fought between youth in the body of George Young and middle age as represented by Ross. Both at last reports from their accompanying boats were still "going strong," with each maintaining about the same stroke/speed.

The temperature of the water is now averaging 51 degrees—a terrible strain on human endurance hour after hour.

It was reported but no confirmed that Henry Sullivan, one of the conquerors of the English Channel, had retired from the race at 8:30 p. m. Sullivan had been swimming along a course
five miles spread out from Young and Ross.

George Young, the youthful swimmer from Toronto, Canada,
took the lead at 5 p. m. after B.
M. Summers, of Alameda, and Leo Purcell, of San Francisco, had given up. The latter two were taken aboard this boat exhausted.

Miss Ethel Hertle, of New York,
led the women for awhile, was also forced to surrender at 5:10.

Situation In China Serious; Missionaries Seek Protection

British Government Has Ordered Additional Ships to Scene

(By Universal Service)
SHANGHAI, China, Jan. 15.—The situation in China today is undoubtedly grave.

One hundred foreign residents including fifteen British subjects were interned by the Chinese at Kuling.

The American authorities have ordered all American missionaries to leave Fukien immediately. It was learned. The Chinese Nationalists were today occupying the properties of the foreign missions at Fukien.

Further reports indicate that the Nationalist soldiers are wrecking foreign properties and that their own officers were unable to control them.

England Sends Cruisers
ATHENS, Jan. 15.—Following reports of the serious condition of affairs in China and the possible menace to British subjects,
the British government today ordered the cruisers of the British Mediterranean fleet, at anchor off Haleron Bay, to proceed to China at once.

VARIETY IN ELK PROGRAM

Henry Welch and his sixteen piece orchestra will furnish the music for the entertainment that will follow the session of the Richmond lodge of Elks on Tuesday night in the local clubrooms,
according to an announcement made yesterday.

Dennis Shaw is chairman of the evening and through his efforts these high class entertainers have been secured.

H. H. Mylander, local vocalist will please with a varied number of popular songs.

Welch and his orchestra are well known throughout the bay regions and Shaw announced that there is a treat in store for every member of the local lodge. The program will be varied with songs by members of the orchestra and the music will be high class, up to-the-minute numbers.

Balloting on candidates will be the chief business of the session which will be presided over by James Stewart, exalted ruler.

Final plans will be made at this meeting for some of the many events planned by the local lodge.
On January 20 the lodge will visit San Rafael, 200 strong. They will leave the local clubrooms at an early hour in the evening and will return on a special boat.

District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler Horace W. Amphlett will pay his official visit to the local lodge on January 25 and plans are being made to make this night one of the biggest on the calendar for the local lodge. An entertainment will be given and at 6:30 the officers of the lodge will be host to the official at a dinner in the club cafe.

The big annual dance will be held at Danville on January 29
under the direction of Harry M.
Stow. Stow announced yesterday that he is securing the service of a well known orchestra for this occasion.

CAR STOLEN
A car owned by Ray Baeth, Huntington boulevard, Richmond

ing place in front of his house
at an early hour last night, according to a report made to the local police. The car was a six cylinder roadster.

ENVOY WARNED NOT TO VISIT MEXICAN CLUB

Rebels Reported to Be Within Five Miles of
Golf Club

(By Universal Service)
By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15.—A "friendly warning" to United States Ambassador Sheffield and others in the American embassy, cautioning them against visiting the Mexico City Country club,
about eight miles from the heart of the capital, was received by the embassy today.

The warning purported to have come from Valerio Pignatelli, recently reported as having joined the insurgent forces with the rank of general.

The rebels, it is claimed, are operating five miles distant from the golf course and sent word that there was nothing personal against the American diplomats, but that the warning was inspired solely by anxiety lest the diplomats might inadvertently suffer injury.

The government today claims that the rebels fighting under the banner of religious zeal are under control.

Meanwhile, a general offensive
is in full swing against Durango, the sole remaining stronghold of the rebels.

It is admitted that the rebels
may offer stubborn resistance against the federal troops.

Sporadic attacks upon railroad lines continue through the country.

Federal troops are guarding workers who are repairing damage to the railroad line to Guadalajara. An attempt made by the rebels to burn a bridge north of Otinapa was thwarted by the federals.

Mining companies report that in some instances their operations were delayed through rebels carrying off available supplies of explosives.

Local Man Pays $25 Fine For Shooting Ducks After Dark

G. Johnson, of Richmond, was fined $25 yesterday morning when he pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Roth to a charge of shooting ducks later than one half hour after sundown.

Johnson was arrested in a raid
made by State Game Warden J.
B. Hobson, Friday night on the Steger mud flats. Several men who were with Johnson escaped in the dark. Hobson stated.

The five ducks in Johnson's possession were turned over to the Alameda hospital. The inmates expect to enjoy a delicious, if slightly illegal duck dinner.

U. S. To Develop St. Lawrence

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Administration support for Secretary Hoover's plan of developing the St. Lawrence River was requested of President Coolidge today by the Minnesota congressional delegation. Development of the river will provide cheaper transportation from the west, especially for farm products, the said Hoover plans provide for widening and deepening of the river and excludes construction of an all-American canal
through New York state. Representatives Furler, Anderson, Claque, Newton and Whitson gave dent.

Counter Attack In Divorce Suit To Be Launched By Famous Star

Lifting of Receivership
To Be First Object of
His Attorneys

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Legal heavy artillery was being mobilized here today for Charlie Chaplin's first barrage against his wife, Mrs. Lita Gray Chaplin, whose sensational divorce suit
was filed last Monday.

The first counter attack by the famous screen comedian's battery of attorneys will be the filing of a motion for the lifting of the receivership which is now in complete control of all Chaplin's assets, including even his luxurious home.

Necessary papers were being prepared today by Nathan Sch-mullwitz, assistant to Gavin Mc-Nab, widely known San Francisco attorney who successfully defended Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle at his trial for manslaughter
in connection with the death of Virginia Rapp, film beauty.

Schmullwitz arrived here today and his chief will follow him tomorrow to take charge of the civil problems of the case. He may also command the comedian's legal battalion when the actual divorce suit comes to trial.

As matters now stand, all of Chaplin's funds and property are firmly tied up under the direction of receivers W. I. Gilbert and Herman Spitzell.

McNab is expected to file his motion for an immediate hearing
and ask for an immediate hearing.
On that day, the big guns of the opposing legal forces will come into action for the first time.
Thus far, the court proceedings have been merely preliminary skirmishes.

Attorney Lyndol Young and Edwin McMurray, chief advisers for Mrs. Chaplin, will fight vigorously the attempt to remove the re-ceivership, they declared today.
That will be one of the more important courtroom clashes.

Another—which will probably come first—will be the hearing
at 10 o'clock, Monday morning
before Presiding Judge Walton J.
Wood of Mrs. Chaplin's application for an order compelling Chaplin to provide funds for the maintenance of herself and two baby sons pending a final decision
in the case.

At this court session, attorney Young announced today, he will attempt to learn whether Chaplin
will return to Los Angeles voluntarily within 30 days to fine an answer to his wife's complaint or whether it will be necessary to serve notice on him by publication. In the event the latter course is followed, the trial of the suit can proceed within a month
without the defendant being pre-

DIAZ, SACASA DESIRE END OF HOSTILITIES

Kellogg Proposes Claims
Commission Settle Land
Trouble in Mexico

By EDWARD L. RODDAN
(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Peace
proposals from both warring factions in Nicaragua and announcement by the state department of its readiness to mediate, or to sanction mediation by any Central American government, broke the acute tension of the Nicaragua
Mexican situation today.

The trend of events gave strong hope that by arbitration and mediation both the Nicaragua and Mexican problems were on their way to a peaceful solution.

Outstanding developments were:
1.—The state department announced that this government
"would welcome" mediation of the Nicaraguan question by any of the other Central American governments.

2.—A "peace plan" was proposed by President Adolfo Diaz, of Nicaragua, under which the United States would act as mediator.

3.—Secretary Kellogg said in his opinion that cases of American property seized under the Mexican land laws can be submitted to the general claims commission for settlement, as exclusively reported by Universal News Service.

4.—Reports from Nicaragua stated that Dr. Juan Sacasa, liberal leader, proposed a peace plan which included immediate cessation of hostilities, resignation of himself and President Diaz, and the holding of a new election.

In the senate, Senator Thomas
Walsh, Democrat of Montana, de-

Coroner Aubrey Wilson tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock over the bodies of George Hughes, 26, and Robert Callender, 44, who were killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Santa Fe passenger train at the Thirty-seventh street
crossing Friday morning.

Final rites for Hughes will be held from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. H. I. Oberholzer, pastor of St. Edmund's church will officiate.

WOMEN IN OFFICE

The National League of Women Voters which recently made a survey of conditions throughout the country has discovered that while in 1925 and 1926 approximately 130 women were elected to the legislatures in the states of the union, that during the last election only 122 were so honored, a decrease of eight. The republicans elected 86 women legislators, the democrats 31, three of women elected had no party designation. It will be interesting to learn just why this decrease has occurred.

It is possible that in some cases, districts have been made over so the women candidates have been gerrymandered out. For all of that in view of the fact that woman suffrage is supposed to be on the upward swing, these figures are rather mysterious. From another source it is learned that the decrease was not because of the lack of women candidates, for the total number who entered the elections was greater than ever before, but they simply were not elected.

"Quarantine on European Nuts Effective Since October 1," says a headline. Wonder whether the order was issued by Secretary Kellogg of the State department, or whether it is a department of agriculture regulation?—Helena, Montana, Independent

A lot of our budding statesmen seem to think it is all right for red-tinted Mexico to intervene in Central America but a terrible shame for Uncle Sam to think of doing likewise.

"Film stars are known by the food they consume." Judged by their productions many of them must consume quantities of baled hay.

It develops in Florida that even two republican candidates for the senate can't beat one democrat.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received, only a few can be answered. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this newspaper. Name your city on your return envelope. Don't say "city."

HOW YOUR IMAGINATION WORKS

Edmund Summer (let us call him) has in his shop a clock on which there are no numbers, but instead the letters of his name. I had noted the time by Mr. Summer's clock many times before I discovered that it had no numbers. Thousands of persons who have never observed their watches for the purpose, cannot tell you offhand whether the hour is 6 o'clock in the morning or 6 o'clock in the evening. We depend a great deal upon imagination. Many of us are the imagination too much. The popular knack of using the imagination instead of observation is often exploited by shrewd merchants. A familiar instance is the imposing written guarantee a quick doctor or fake medicine vendor offers the gullible prospect—a guarantee which is ridiculous on its face, yet which seems to impress people who have a hankering for dealing with such bogus mongers. Thousands of simple folk have been victimized by crooks who offered written guarantees to treat John Q. Doe's ailment, the poor boob undertaking to pay so much a month for the treatment, under which terms of course a cure, even if the charlatan could effect it, would be poor business.

Recently I said here in reply to a query: "I am glad to read the rules for recovery from the constipation habit to any reader who incloses a stamped envelope bearing his address, tells me he has the constipation habit and wishes to overcome it, and omits clippings, historical dissertations, cassafra, and other extraneous or abstract matters."

Maybe this was a trifle too complicated, but I thought it was a reasonably fair test. Within the next few days I received the following:

Requests which complied with instructions ..... 721
Requests for my constipation cure ..... 108
Requests for treatment for chronic constipation ..... 142
Clippings of the item, some with loose stamps ..... 83
Various complaints of "liver trouble," etc. .... 214
Dissertations upon autointoxication, diet, etc. .... 24
Inquiries how one could obtain copy of my book, pamphlet, treatise, booklet or leaflet on the cure of constipation ..... 62

I believe the 721 readers who complied with the instructions could tell offhand about the 6 o'clock business on their watches. I suspect the other 633 correspondents would make excellent prospects for slick swindlers; they rely more upon their imagination than they do upon observation.

There's something about our method of education that determines this. I am not enough educator to point out precisely what it is, but it is there. Any teacher trained in pedagogy can explain it.

The 633 correspondents who were incapable of following the instructions probably believed in Santa Claus and many other myths until they were pretty well along in childhood. They probably fondled many illusions in early youth. They probably harbor many delusions, superstitions or fatuous notions now, particularly relating to disease and health. Such people constitute the followers of freak cults in healing and in religion. To them the promptings of an overdeveloped imagination are as significant as the facts elicited through observation or experience. Seams to me, and bear in mind I am a downright lowbrow, that when children in school are taught Shelley rather than physics, Shakespeare before chemistry and legends or fiction in place of physiology they develop a too facile imagination without acquiring the knowledge which is necessary to balance and restrain imagination. This training produces neurotic, "nervous," "highstrung," flighty, unstable citizens, better fitted for a dream world, a romantic existence, than for the realities of life.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Dentist's Vagaries

I seem to have an acid mouth which causes trouble with my teeth, and my dentist says I must eliminate all sugars and starches from my diet. Will you please give me a diet which contains no sugars or starches. (R. M. E.)

Answer: No, I advise you not to monkey with your diet. If your diet calls for revision you should have medical advice. The dentist is indulging in an antiquated and exploded notion.

A Heavy Drinker

I have a bad habit of drinking from three to eight gallons of water daily. Most of it is voided but it causes me much misery at times by interfering with my work. While I keep myself busy I do not drink nearly so much as when I am idle. It seems as though I want to stand at the water faucet all the time and literally pour it down. If there is anything under the sun you can suggest for me, please do so. (Idaho)

Answer: It may be more habit, but more likely insipidus, which depends on some lesion or functional deficiency of the pituitary gland at the well known base of the brain. In many cases great relief is given by the judicious use of an extract of that gland, which, of course, only your physician can administer. But sometimes such trouble is due to tubercle, gumma or other forms of brain tumor. I am trying to alarm you just enough to make you seek proper medical care.

Scarlet Fever

Kindly tell me whether scarlet fever can be caught by coming into contact with some one who lives in the same house as the patient. (S. E. G.)

Answer: Not unless that one is himself coming down with the disease.

Adenoids

What causes adenoids? Is there any cure for them aside from the knife? (Mrs. S. V.)

Answer—"Adenoids" is the name given to thickening or enlargement (hypertrophy) of a mass of tonsil tissue which is normally present in the roof or upper part of the cavity back of the nasal chambers. This pharyngeal tonsil (as physicians call it) becomes enlarged from much the same causes as are commonly responsible for enlargement of the throat tonsils. There are various means of treating "adenoids," the generally surgical removal of the obstructing mass is the best treatment.

WHAT TO TELL THE CHILD

WHO EATS CHICKEN

"Dear Dr. Dean: We had chicken for Christmas and my three-year-old boy watched me fix it, and of course wondered. My answer was, our bodies are just big boxes to hold the beautiful spirit God has given us. So when we die our bodies are put away and are no good any more, but our spirit, the real us, lives always. So it is with the chicken's spirit when it dies it doesn't need its body any more so we eat that, but the chicken's spirit lives on. His next question was if we ate people after they died. So I told him no, we didn't eat people or cats or dogs or horses. Just some things were used for food, and with this answer he was satisfied.

Explaining Mother.

An elderly father writes: "Dear Arthur Dean: I have myself reared four children, now grown, but I never experienced any difficulty to the extent complained of by 'Seeking.' They were always ready for their share of chicken or turkey, regardless of the fact it had been running around the yard a few hours previously.

"In regard to the death of pet animals or of animals slaughtered for food, the reasoning faculty must be brought to bear. The child should be taught that the Divine Intelligence, whose name is also Love, gave man dominion over every living thing upon the earth, and that he is entitled to kill whatever is necessary for his maintenance. Moreover, all things material are doomed to death and decay, and it is only the spiritual that never dies. The real man, the image and likeness of God, must necessarily be spiritual, and therefore shares the eternal life of his Creator.

A selfish girl whose religion has not been killed by science teaching adds her bit: "Dear Doctor:

"I think older people look at birth and death from too deep a viewpoint. Christ said, 'Except as ye become as little children ye shall not enter the kingdom of heaven.'"

"I think both birth and death may be cleverly explained by examples from nature. There are several angles to the death is connected with old age the release from trouble and care might be stressed. If the death is of a young person many beautiful legends may be used figuratively.

"The purpose in explaining either birth or death is mainly to keep the child's thoughts and faith pure and strong. There's a period in every life when all faith is shaken—then older people can do nothing but strengthen us and help us to think the thing through for ourselves. Oh! if mothers and friends would only realize the darkness of this time, and simply show and not command the way.

A Girl Friend.

As It Might Have Been

"Dear Doctor: Today I read what you said about death and what other people said and I liked what the woman wrote yesterday about God's Flower Garden. But please tell me about my dog and my flowers and the pretty things I pick along the highway. Can't they go to Heaven with me? If I pull a flower up by the roots doesn't it hurt? If Marco Polo is a good dog and I am a good boy can't we go and see God together when

FOR ANY TIME OF YEAR

Here's a nice little letter from "Just Between," who is between eleven and twelve years of age. "Dear Dr. Dean:

"I saw helpful hints on earning pin money in your column. I would like to add a few more hints which I have thought of and tried:

"Offer your services to shoppers who have many bundles to carry and walk home, by pulling the bundles on a sled or a coaster wagon, if you are a boy, and if a girl perhaps your brother has one he will let you use. If the people live from six to ten blocks, charge ten cents; if from twelve blocks and above, fifteen to twenty-five cents.

"Sell seals (as mentioned), cards and novelties.

"Being a regular errand-boy, or girl, for a neighbor at twenty-five cents a week, or for Dad or Mother for a slightly less sum.

"Taking small children out for rides or airings on your sled when snow is on the ground, and in their buggies or a borrowed one when there's no snow, for ten cents each time.

"Doing shopping for a neighbor. Have them write the articles or groceries wanted on a slip of paper. If everything is brought back as cleanly as it left the store and safely, charge ten cents.

"The suggestions are mostly for girls, as I am a girl, except the first, second, and third, which apply to either a boy or girl.

"JUST BETWEEN"

The Marriage Game

As Played to a Decision Every Day By Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Matton

"MOVE ON, BOZO! WHAT IS IT, A TINK DIS PARK IS A FREE FLOP?"

WHAT'S WRONG HERE

ANSWER—No lady-like policeman should use such coarse methods to recall a slumbering gnat from the arms of Morpheus. He should sing a quaint ballad, playing softly a Jew's sharp. Pleasantly disturbed by the melody, the sleeper awakes, whereupon tender hearted John Law explains that no true Chesterfield sleeps in public without a pillow, and producing one from his pocket he hands it to the object of his affections, lulling him back to sleep again with a bed time story.

Copyright by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. "The Black Diamond Express," starring Monte Blue, is Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

John Ballard, a poor orphan, works his way through college, then devotes a brilliant law career to fighting conscienceless railroads, and becomes District Attorney. John loved Viola Ruskin, but through curious misunderstandings she married Phil Hardin, his old chum, now President of the local railroad. John, money poor, but with the road, tries to buy John; failing, he warns him not to become an enemy. A grave accident occurs, due to negligence. John grimly sets plans to put responsible company officials in jail, but gives Phil a chance to explain.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"John!" he said. "Hello! I—I'm fearfully upset. A terrible business, this—"

"Terrible, indeed," said John. "Phil—I'm going to speak frankly and plainly. Do you realize that if I do my duty I shall have to have you and every responsible official of this road indicted?"

Phil sprang up, his face white. "You—you're crazy!" he said. "He was shaking all over; his voice trembled. 'You—you can't do anything like that. It—it's not my fault—it was an accident—the rails spread—it's something that has happened again and again on every railway in the country—'

"No use meeting me in that apologetic tone," said John. "His voice was kind; it was impossible not to feel pity for the broken man who faced him. 'Phil—I want you to understand, if you can, that I'm here as your friend. I know much more than you think I do. I know of your real relation to this road—and to Henry Jordan. I know that you are not actually and morally responsible for much that has been going on—though there's little doubt as to your legal accountability.'"

"What—yes—I know you're my friend—always were. Best friend I ever had—old John! John—what—what do you want me to do?"

"I want you to cut away from Jordan. I want you to agree to tell me the truth. To answer, fully and frankly, any and all the questions I may have to ask you. If you will do that—I can save you. I may be able to stop any criminal prosecution.

"I'm not so much interested in punishing anyone for what has happened as I am in making sure that nothing of this sort ever happens again. These people are dead—to send you and a dozen others to jail—"

"Send you to jail?" John repeated, mercilessly. "cannot restore them to life. But—it is possible to save the lives of others. If you will give me a full, true statement in reply to some questions, and it will really save me that every possible step is being taken to put the road in such shape that no such so-called accident as this can happen again—why, then I may be able, consistently with my duty as district attorney, to refrain from causing your indictment. What do you say?"

"I—I—I don't know," said Phil, wretchedly. "I must—I have to see—"

"You needn't tell me," said John, contemptuously. "You have to see your master—Jordan! I know. Where is he?"

"He's in New York—but he's on his way—he's driving up in his car—"

"A wise man!" said John, scornfully. "He knows better than to trust his precious life to the road he's ruined, doesn't he? Well—see him, Phil. And—for your own sake do what you can to make him agree to the terms I'm offering. For if he doesn't so help me God, you and some others are going to prison!"

"I'll do what I can," said Phil. "But—you don't understand, John. The road has lost money. All this government interference—the duty of borrowing money. It's been a trained railway man to understand these things. You aren't familiar with the facts—"

"I am more familiar with them than you think," said John. "I'm more familiar with them than I mean to tell you now—knowing that you'll carry everything I say to Jordan. Phil—Phil—is there no manhood in you? Can't you, even now, stand on your own feet? Haven't you courage enough, now that you've seen the meaning of what's been going on, to cut loose from Jordan and try to redeem yourself? It's not too late. I'll give you all the help I can if you'll trust yourself to me—"

"You don't understand—I can't—I can't—I've got to see Jordan first—"

"Very well!" John rose. "See him. I'll wait till ten o'clock tonight for word from you—and not one minute longer. Good bye, Phil. I want to be your friend—if you'll let me."

CHAPTER VIII

Henry Jordan, grim and silent, heedless of the black looks he got from those in the street who recognized him already in Ventnor, thanks to the Sun public opinion was running high against him—reached the city that afternoon.

To reporters, swarming around him, he spoke a few words. "I have, of course, no direct connection with the operation of the N. Y. and C. V. I am a heavy holder of the road's securities, and as chairman of the Board of Directors, I have a voice in its financial control. Operating policies, however, are in the hands of the President and his subordinates. I have every confidence in them and their ability.

"President Hardin informs me that the tragic and deeply regrettable accident of last night is already being investigated. Pending the outcome of that investigation it would be idle for me to discuss its causes or to speculate upon them. But I can, and will, say that I am convinced that the investigation will show that this was one of those accidents that no human foresight could have averted."

Cold, impassive, unmoved by the gloomy atmosphere of the building, Jordan made his way to Phil Hardin's office. He found Phil white and shaken. He glared at him contemptuously.

"Better take a drink!" he said. "Man—you look as if you'd seen a ghost! Brace up! This is no time for whimpering!"

"You haven't been here," said Phil. "You don't know what it's been like. I've been afraid to go out. I think they'd lynch me if they dared."

"Don't be a fool," said Jordan, angrily. "You've lost your nerve. What are you afraid of? You've no personal responsibility in this wreck."

"Ballard thinks I have—says I have," said Phil. "Mr. Jordan—I want you to know about that—about Ballard's coming here to do as he likes. He's got a voice in the wreck."

"Ballard, eh?" Jordan's voice was like ice. "If I'd gone to him myself ten years ago instead of trusting you, like a fool, he'd be in our employ right now. What's he up to?"

Phil told him of John Ballard's coming and his threats.

"I see," said Jordan. "Think he's bluffing, Phil?"

"He never bluffed in his life, Mr. Jordan. It's not his game."

"What's the idea, then? Is he trying to hold us up? He's got a good chance to do that if that's what he's after. I'm prepared to admit that much."

"I wish that were all it came to!" said Phil. "No. John's as straight as a string. You've got to understand that and act on that idea, think? I think we've got to do as he says. Clean up. Put the road in shape. We—I can't face the possibility of more preventable wrecks."

"You talk like a fool!" said Jordan, angrily. "If you think I'm going to let any backwoods district attorney bluff me into altering carefully defined and well thought out policies you're mistaken. Can't you see what it would mean for us to come out now and say we were going to put the road into first class shape? Why, it would be an admission that we'd been negligent before. We'd be lucky, after all, to escape with a three or four million dollar bill for damages—there'd be no limit to what they could bleed us for this wreck alone—to say nothing of all the pending damage suits in other cases."

"I'd rather have it that way than go to jail—"

"You're not going to jail. No one's going to jail. Make up your mind that. This man Ballard is going to be headed off. I've been up against this sort of thing before, Phil. Men like Ballard are all alike. There's a weak spot somewhere—it's simply a question of plugging away till we find it. Now—let's look into the case of this virtuous young man. You know him. Pay attention to me. How does he stand about women?"

Men Who Made the World. FERNANDO CORT EZ By Dr. Elliot Shoring, the Noted Historian

THE MORNING THAT FOLLOWED THE SORROWFUL NIGHT FOUND THE SAD REMNANTS OF THE ONCE POWERFUL SPANISH-TLASCALAN FORCE AT TACUBACA SO BROKEN AND EXHAUSTED WERE THEY THAT NOT EVEN IN DEFENSE OF THEIR LIVES DID THEY SEEM ABLE TO RAISE A HAND. THE SPANISH ARTILLERY NO LONGER EXISTED, ONLY A FEW MUSKETS HAD BEEN SAVED AND THE TERRIFIC LOSSES ON THE SORROWFUL NIGHT WILL NEVER BE KNOWN. CORTÉZ WEPT AS THE SHABBY REMNANTS OF HIS ARMY PASSED BEFORE HIM.

IF THE MEXICANS HAD FOLLOWED UP THEIR ADVANTAGE PROMPTLY, NO SPANIARDS WOULD HAVE SURVIVED. AFTER A DAY'S REST CORTÉZ, MINDFUL OF THEIR EXTREME PERIL, STARTED TOWARD THE FRIENDLY CITY OF TLAZCALA. FOR SIX DAYS THE SPANIARDS MARCHED WITHOUT ENCOUNTERING ANY CONSIDERABLE NUMBER OF ENEMY. BUT ON THE SEVENTH MORNING IN THE VALLEY OF OTUMBA THEY BEHELD TO THEIR DISMAY A VAST BODY OF TROOPS PREPARED TO DISPUTE THEIR PASSAGE. CUICILHUATZIN HAD SENT THIS FORCE TO INTERCEPT THE SPANISH RETREAT.

CORTÉZ QUICKLY PUT HIS WEARY MEN IN BATTLE ORDER WITH THE WOUNDED IN THE CENTER OF THE HOLLOW SQUARE. THEN FROM ALL SIDES HORDES OF AZTEC WARRIORS RUSHED UPON THE WEARY SPANIARDS AND THEIR MIDDLE OF THE DAY THE SPANIARDS WERE SO DISORGANIZED THEY BEGAN TO GIVE WAY. THE AZTEC COMMANDER HAD BEEN CARRIED BY HIS NOBLES IN A LITTER TO A HILLOCK FROM WHERE HE COULD DIRECT HIS TROOPS. THERE FLOATED HIS BATTLE STANDARD. THIS GAVE THE RESOURCEFUL CORTÉZ AN IDEA. HE REMEMBERED THAT THE DEATH OF THE COMMANDER OR THE CAPTURE OF HIS STANDARD WERE SIGNALS AMONG THE MEXICANS FOR RETREAT. WITH SIX OF HIS ABLEST CAPTAINS ON HORSES, CORTÉZ LED A DIRECT CHARGE AT THE AZTEC COMMANDER AND SUCCEEDED IN FORCING A PASSAGE THROUGH THE MASSES OF STRUGGLING WARRIORS. IN AN INSTANT THE LITTER WAS OVERTHROWN. CAPTAIN SALAMANCA SLEW THE PRISONER COMMANDER, SEIZED THE STANDARD AND CORTÉZ RAISED IT WITH CRIES OF VICTORY. THE EFFECT WAS IMMEDIATE. THE MEXICANS, STRICKEN WITH PANIC, FLED. (75 OF CORTÉZ'S)

Lloyd Wright, Chaplin's personal attorney, will represent him at this hearing. He announced again today that Mrs. Chaplin's suit will be fought "at every turn of the road," so it was considered certain that he will oppose all of the plaintiff's requests.

Alfred Reeves, general business manager for the film star, is also expected to be present at this hearing. He is one of the defendants in the case. He has been confined to his home by illness for the last week. He was unable to be present yesterday at the studio when receiver Spitzzell sought to open the concrete vault and steel safe which are supposed to hold valuable films and stocks and bonds. As Reeves is the only man who knows the combinations, except Chaplin, the contents of the receptacles are still a mystery. Receiver Spitzzell said today that he did not intend to make any further effort to open them until Monday.

The motion picture colony was eagerly awaiting the arrival here tonight of Will Hays, the "Musi Solini" of the film world, who said yesterday at El Paso, Texas, that he would make an investigation of the affair. Whether he intends to plunge into this inquiry before the trial of the case was one of the questions agitating Hollywood today. Several prominent producers expressed the opinion that he would attempt to act as a peacemaker in the domestic tragedy, but they doubted if any effort along this line would meet with success.

Attorney Young reiterated today his statement of last night in answer to Chaplin's dramatic story from New York of the reasons for the break. He declared again that his client has not been guilty of any impropriety and said that it was "far easier to give statements to the press than to make them under oath in a courtroom."

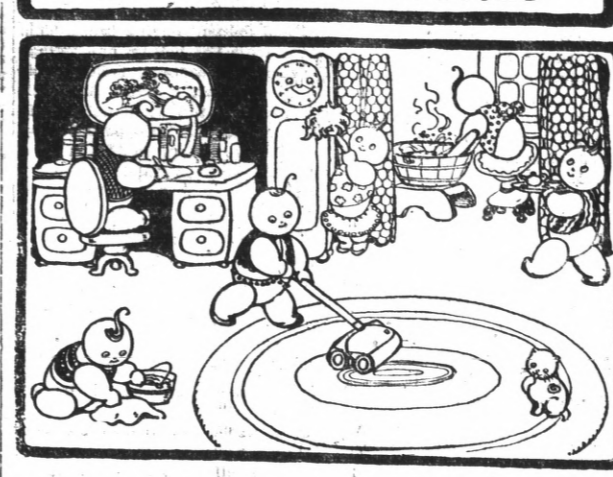

Mrs. Chaplin, her babies and her mother, Mrs. Lillian Spicer, moved today from the home of her grandfather, William E. Curry, in Beverly Hills. She rented a two-story house in a quiet but fashionable neighborhood and announced that she would remain there until her case is decided. She refused again to make any comment on Chaplin's explanation of their marital troubles.

DANCE NUMBER HEADS BILL AT THE CALIFORNIA

Dance Moments, with a quartet of young eastern "persichians" as the principals, offering "Grace and Rhythm" comes as the head-line attraction of the big five act bill of vaudeville to be offered at the California theatre today, in conjunction with the screen feature "The Boy Friend."

An odd but cleverly arranged study of dancing styles that is the presentation of grace and beauty. The offering is tastefully costumed and a pretty stage setting is a fitting background for this artistic presentation.

Barney and Lane in "You'll Soon Find Out" is a comedy singing, talking, dancing offering with two snappy boys doing straight and comedy bits that are sure fire laugh winners. Barney is an Italian character delineator of no mean merit while Lane is an able foil for his funniness.

The personality Girls, Williams and Louise specialize in harmony and comedy numbers with voices that blend to please the most capricious of critics. Miss Williams is the comedienne of this delightful sister act that is featured with up to the minute songs.

Blondy Robinson the southern entertainer with the mobile face and the nifty dancing feet is a comedy dispenser who is always a big favorite.

Murphy and Murphy in a sensational shooting novelty bring the great outdoors with them in their clever specialty offering.

Car Dealer Has Still Bigger Job Says Strom

"The car dealer must keep pace with the entire automotive industry if he is to measure up to the ever-increasing responsibility which fast-growing motor transportation puts upon him," says J. P. Strom, local automobile dealer.

"Better cars and more cars mean better dealers. The essentials of good day-by-day performance of any motor car must be provided by strictly local factors."

"The 1927 model car dealer is bigger, stronger and more responsible than ever. He meets an increased responsibility to those who buy cars from him with increased equipment for service and maintenance."

OLDSMOBILE DE LUXE TOURING WITH RIGID SIDE CURTAINS

A new type touring car that brings the joy of the open without its disadvantages is the latest addition to the Oldsmobile line. The car has European-type rigid and removable side curtains which can be used with the top both up and down. It was shown for the first time during the week of the New York Automobile Show.

One of the outstanding advantages of the new design is the ability of motorists to ride in the open air, with top down, and yet be protected from wind and rain. Full vision, of larger area than is usual in open cars, is another achievement of Oldsmobile designers in this new touring type.

Each of the four side curtains is composed of two metal frames welded at the corners. The large sheets of heavy pylon, which form the windows, and the heavy waterproof fabric forming the edges, are placed between the two frames which are fastened together with 24 machine screws. This type construction gives great rigidity.

The curtains are installed by inserting two bronze rods attached to each frame in metal cups countersunk in the top of the car doors. The front curtains fasten to and hinge on the inside of the windshield sidearm. The four curtains can be attached or removed without leaving the interior of the car.

When not in use the curtains are stored in a compartment behind the rear seat cushion back. The cushion is hinged at the bottom and swings forward from the top, making the compartment accessible without disturbing passengers in the rear seat. The storage space is so arranged that the curtains will not rub.

A new one-piece windshield also has been added to both the Standard and deluxe touring types. This opens from the bottom and swings forward on a shift, running the full top width of the windshield. It is held in any desired position by two thumb screws located at the top of the windshield in easy reach of the driver. The shield has straight side supports and, is sealed against the weather.

The top is of grey weatherproof fabric matching the material used on the side curtains. It has exposed natural wood bows and black enameled slat irons instead of the conventional bow construction. It is equipped with a side weather strip the entire length on both sides, forming a seal against which the tops of the side curtains rest.

The top folds to a thickness of 5 1/4 inches and lies level with the top of the car body. A top boot is furnished. A strap holds the rear window in a flat position both to eliminate any possibility of breakage and to keep it from bulging the folded top.

A new type and inconspicuous bracket holds the top in its folded position. The top is fastened to the bracket by a metal arm instead of the regulation leather strap. In addition to the utility of this feature it adds greatly to the rigidity of the folded top.

Practically all of the polished metal parts are finished in chromium plating, a process perfected by Oldsmobile nearly a year ago which is rust proof and has permanent lustre qualities.

The car is equipped with a foot and robe rail similar to those used in Oldsmobile closed cars.

The upholstery is of genuine leather, black pebble-grained finish. Russian brown Duco is used below the molding and Mole skin grey above the molding and extending in a saddle over the hood. Carmine striping is used.

COMEDY FILM IS ATTRACTION AT RICHMOND

W. C. Fields is finally coming into his own. After more than twenty years of stage pantomime he is now being generally accepted as one of the screen's really great comedians.

This former nomad of vaudeville hasn't had an easy time of it. Life has been hard on Fields. The path of roses has always been a myth. You see, he's had to work for everything he ever got—and he's still carrying on.

"Trouping" in the far corners of the earth has given Fields a slant on comedians and their antics which is mighty hard to duplicate. He claims that the things which get laughs are those homely truths, actions or words which are developed and given surprise endings.

"So's Your Old Man," Fields' second Paramount starring vehicle which arrives at the Richmond theatre today is just chuck full of such gags. But in addition to a profusion and overabundance of laughs, "So's Your Old Man" is also the possessor of a real story. Julian Street's "Mr. Bixbee's Princess," winner of the O. Henry Memorial Prize for the best short story of 1925, was adapted by Howard Emmett Rogers.

It tells the tale of Samuel Bixbee, a hen-pecked husband who invents an unbreakable glass windshield and innocently becomes involved in an "affair with a beautiful princess. On her arrival in his home town, he is first ostracized and then made the social lion of the hour.

The new styles and modes which he innovates when he takes his coat off at a fashionable luncheon when he plays golf, and any of half a dozen other ridiculous things, will keep audiences in paroxysms of joy.

Other features on the same program include "Creeps," a Jack White comedy, and "Kinograms," world news events.

The Brake Shop has Installed New Brake Tester

The Brake Shop at 7th street and Barrett avenue has installed the Friedli Automatic Recording Brake Tester. This is the same instrument used by the police departments in the East Bay cities and the instrument is absolutely correct in recording the condition of the brakes.

All may take advantage of these free tests as the manager of the Brake Shop makes no charge for the test and everyone gets an official certificate free of cost.

This certificate protects the driver as far as his brakes are concerned.

"The Boy Friend" Film Attraction At The California

Monte Bell, who is responsible for such cinematic gems as "Broadway After Dark," "The Snob," "The King on Main Street" and others, has found a new field for his efforts.

In "The Boy Friend" his last Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film coming to the California theatre today, Bell has one of the most charming satires in years. While a great many people will understand the picture and enjoy it only in the surface within which it appears as he directed, there is an undercurrent of wit, and Bell went about the studio with his tongue in his cheek much of the time. "The Boy Friend" is a satire on the etiquette book, disguised in this case under "The Book of Charm," and offers a host of opportunities for the display of his particular brand of humor. An excellent script was prepared by Alice D. G. Miller from the play, "The Book of Charm," by John A. Kirkpatrick.

Marceline Day and John Harron have the leading roles, and Walter Tennyson, Gertrude Astor, Elizabeth Patterson, Otto Hoffman, Gwen Lee and others are in the cast.

Other features on the same program include "Red Hot Rills," a Cameo comedy; "Kinograms," Wieg's Californians; Larry Canelo at the organ and five acts of vaudeville.

PEERLESS AUTO SALESROOM IS OPENED HERE

Wright and Madera, local automobile firm, officially opened its new Peerless salesrooms last night. Many Richmond people attend the opening and evinced interest in the new Peerless models now being shown.

A complete line of cars is on exhibition. It was explained that the Peerless company two years ago decided upon a drastic change of policy. The company was one of the early pioneers in the automobile industry and specialized in high grade and expensive cars. A moderate priced car was built as an experiment and its reception on the market showed that the American people wanted Peerless machines, the local dealers over.

Cars are now built at the low figure of $1895 and range upward to $5000.

"But the motor in the moderate priced car is the same as that in the more expensive make," Madera stated. "The 6-90 sedan and the roadster coupe are representative of the high class of workmanship that is put into every machine that leaves the factory." The business of the Peerless company showed a 255 percent increase during the past year, according to Roy T. Wolford, wholesale representative for J. W. Leavitt and Company, San Francisco. Wolford is in Richmond assisting the new firm of Wright and Madera in their opening.

The members of the firm are well known in Richmond. They have been in the automobile business locally for a number of years and intend to give the benefit of experience to the best of their ability.

Quarter Hundred of Years Old

The quarter-century milestone of the foundation of this Company is reached this year. From an unpretentious start, the Company's progress has been notable in mercantile history.

This has not been simply because of its remarkable growth, but more noticeably on account of the success its many stores have attained in giving a service to the public that has been idealized by customers.

Through all the 25 years, the concern of the Company has been chiefly in providing high standard quality goods at lowest possible prices and safeguarding its customers so that this service might always be enjoyed by them.

Day after day and year after year, the Company in every way, has endeavored to serve the public better than was expected. That it has succeeded in these endeavors is shown by the fact that the combined sales of all its stores in 1926 were approximately $25,000,000 more than in 1925.

The Stories of and in the Bible

By Shailer Mathews

Supposing that we had lived before there were any telescopes, what should we have thought was the shape of the earth? It is not hard to answer this question because we know what men thousands of years ago did believe. We should have thought was flat; that the earth was surrounded by water; that the sky was stretched over it like a great tent cover. Beneath this covering the sun moved from one side of the earth to the other during the daytime while in the night the moon and the little stars gave light. We should have believed that this flat earth rested on something, probably water.

This is what the great Semite race to which the ancient Hebrew people belonged believed long before the Bible was written. We know this because we have little clay books which were written hundreds of years before Rome was founded.

When in recent days men have been able to excavate the ruins of Babylon and Nineveh, they found whole libraries of these little books written in a language older than the Hebrew.

Ancient observers made some marvelous discoveries with their unaided eyes, but their explanations were more poetical than scientific. In fact, most of the early people explained nature mythologically, i. e. by the stories of great monsters and heroes. One of these ancient poems has been preserved. In it the beginning of things is a great dragon "Tiamat," or the "abyss."

This dragon fought with Marduk, the great god, and was killed. Marduk cut Tiamat in two; one part of her body he made into a circle of the sea; the other part he made into the sky and out of certain parts he made the earth.

Among other Babylonian beliefs, we find one which taught that the universe was created by creative acts. In the beginning there was an abyss of water and darkness which were not created. The first step was the creation of light, then the waters of the great abyss were separated so as to have waters above the sky and waters under the earth. The ancient Babylonian poem speaks of a garden called Edin in which was a sacred tree guarded by angels. One tablet contains a passage about sinning by eating forbidden fruit.

Parallels between them and parts of the first chapters of Genesis are very evident. But it will not do to say offhand that one is merely a rewriting of the other. They may both have come from a very ancient source.

Students of the Bible have for many years recognized that there are two accounts of the Creation in the Bible, itself. In one, which is supposed to be the older, the deity is called by the sacred name of the god of Israel, Yahweh. This word was never pronounced by the Hebrews, but the Hebrew word, which is translated Lord, was always substituted for it. The authorized version of the Bible also uses the word Lord. This old account is written in vivid, picturesque style. Yahweh (or Jehovah) is represented as making the earth and the heavens and the plants, which were watered by the mist which came up from the earth. He also made a man from the dust of the ground, then breathed into his nostrils and man became a "living soul." The Yahweh planted a garden called Edin, where every sort of edible fruit grew, including the tree of life and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. The garden was watered by a river which divided it into four parts. Here in this garden Yahweh placed the man to dress it and keep it. There Yahweh walked in the cool of the evening. Yahweh also made of the ground beasts and fowls and brought them to the man to be named. Later, seeing that man was lonely, he caused him to fall asleep and took one of his ribs and made it into a woman. Then an account is given of the temptation of the man and the woman. The other account is more elaborate and the deity has no name. He is simply called God (Elohim). As in the Babylonian account, there was originally darkness and the "abyss" of water called Tehom (a word almost identical with "Tiamat"). Then follows the account of the succession of the creative commands of God, each of which is assigned a certain day. First there is the division of light from darkness; then there is the establishment of a firmament or the sky, which divides the waters of the original "abyss" into two parts, those above firmament and those below the firmament. On the third day there followed the appearance of the dry earth and the gathering together of the waters below the firmament into the seas, and the command for the earth to bring forth grass and trees. On the fourth day were created the sun, the moon, and the stars which God set in the firmament of the heavens. On the fifth day God commanded the water to bring forth living creatures and fowl. On the sixth day the earth was commanded to bring forth the cattle and other "living souls" (for this account uses the same Hebrew expression for animals that the other does for mankind) which inhabit the earth. Finally, on the same day, God created mankind, both male and female, "in his own image" to have dominion over the earth and the seas and every form of life upon the earth.

The relation of this second account of the creation to the Babylonian account of the same events has long been the subject of discussion among scholars. Points of similarity are evident, but the points of difference are vastly more important. It is majestic monotheistic and its order of events, while not the same as that given by modern science, is clearly a divinely directed progress from chaos to humanity. It is religious rather than scientific in the modern sense of the word. While it embodies some of the eye-limited scientific views of the ancient world, it is no myth and it is immeasurably superior to the Babylonian myths. In it we have no struggle between a dragon and a god. It brings men face to face with what is ultimate in religious faith, a God who progressively creates a world for the home of men who are more than "living souls," and are in the image of God; that is to say, are possessed of a spiritual nature.

The writer of the first chapter of Genesis is not concerned with describing the methods used by God in creation. These he leaves science to discover. He centers attention upon God's presence in his universe. Darkness and the "abyss" lay beyond human knowledge, but in what the eye could observe in earth and sea and sky, there was nothing that did not find its source in God. And that is a truth never to be cut-grown. Our telescopes and microscopes and other instruments may carry us beyond the limits of these ancient observers of nature, but the religious faith which finds expression in the first chapter of Genesis instills ours. For we too can believe that science, through it discovers more completely the methods of divine action, can never reach beyond God.

Buick Ahead Again in the Yellowstone!

Again in 1926, more Buicks toured through Yellowstone Park than any other car except the one of the lowest price.

Buick has held this same honor every year since the Park was opened to automobile travel.

This year there were 4,756 Buicks in a total of 44,472 cars registered. 101 different makes were represented in the registrations. One in every ten was a Buick.

Here is convincing evidence of Buick reliability—striking proof of the faith which Buick owners repose in their car.

They know Buick will take them and bring them back comfortably, safely and splendidly—across the Continent—or around the World.

BUDDY RYAN TO MAKE HIS DEBUT AT EL CERRITO

Buddy Ryan the fast Pinole boxer who many of the fans have long wanted to see in these parts will at last make his debut Friday night at the El Cerrito Athletic Club with the all star card show. Buddy has a date with Ray Walker the clever Oakland featherweight. In Walker's only two starts here he showed a world of class. He stopped the first boy and then held Billy Burke even. Ryan has boxed mostly at Vallejo, Oakland and San Francisco. He boxed once at El Cerrito winning easy. That was months ago. Ryan and Walker box the six round semi-windup. In the main event Joe Limas faces his toughest foe as yet in Tim Vahey. Timothy is the same boy who gave Frankie Ray and Billy Maher a schelling and then topped it off with stopping Jack Riley. That makes the Limas-Vahey match look like the main go so far staged here. Never was there as much smoke over a fight as there is in this show.

Mickey Brown of Richmond will also be on the card. Mickey has a date with Jerry Sylvia a hard hitting boy from San Francisco. Sylvia comes well recommended as he has never lost a bout thus far. Andy Capriola of Honolulu who had one bout since coming here, stopped Les Adair in a few rounds last week at the S. F. National Club. Now Andy is paired off with Frankie Perry the tough little fellow who gave young Cumpston a hard draw fight and beat Charlie Actis. Both Capriola and Perry are sluggers, rugged tough and game. Their bout no doubt will be the best on the card. Mickey Britton meets Joe Diamond in a return go. Billy Tret a new comer from Oakland takes on Jimmy Ryan in the opener.

Every bout is well matched. Every boy has been tried and not found wanting as the Club officials want only those they know fight and give the clients action. The El Cerrito show have been the talk of every fan from Oakland to Richmond. The house is a sure sell out. By Friday there will be few rincease seats left. The general admission tickets will be put on sale on the night of the bouts.

BOOK ON SONGS OF OLD PROVES POPULAR HERE

A book which is attracting much attention is "Read 'em and Weep, the Songs You Forgot to Remember," by Spaeth, an entertaining account, with words and music of the popular songs of America from 1850 down to date. Word comes from the coast that it is causing bitter rivalries at many a party where the guests insist on proving that they can sing straight through the volume, according to a report from the local library.

Three other books of a humorous order are "Laughs," by Thos. Masson, the editor of "Life," "The Gazelle's Ears," by Corey Ford and "The Younger Married Set," by Geo. Chappell.

The two biographies among the new books for this week are Herbert Gorman's life of Henry W. Longfellow whom he calls "A Victorian American" and Mrs. Van Vorst's "A Girl From China," which is the story of the remarkable Chinese girl, Soumay Tchong, who has taken her degree as a lawyer at the University of Paris.

Two volumes of out-door life are the "Gentle Art of Tramping," by Stephen Graham, who writes out of his own varied and delightful experiences, and "Last Memories of a Tenderfoot," by another Englishman, R. H. Townsend, who was a tenderfoot in New Mexico and Arizona in 1875 and again in 1903.

Two books for the science lover are Grondal's "Music of the Spheres," a simple and attractively written astronomy, and "The Romance of the Fungus World" by Robert Rolfe.

Books of especial interest to women are, "The French Pastry Book," a well illustrated recipe book, and "101 New Ways for Women to Make Money," with practical suggestions for selling and advertising.

"Rewards of Reading," is a collection of little essays on literary appreciation for those who like some direction in their reading, and "Better Writing," by Prof. Canby will interest all who wish to express themselves in writing.

Lovers of poetry will want to see the six new booklets in the pamphlet poets series, also the new volumes by Sara Teasdale and Lizette Reese.

Members of the Richmond fire department will be interested to know that the library has the new edition of Capt. Geo. Murray's "Firemen's Handbook."

DIAZ, SAGASA DESIRE END OF HOSTILITIES

fended the Knight of Columbus of charges that they are seeking to foment war between this government and Mexico.

Senator Tom Hefflin, Democrat of Alabama, renewed his charges against the Knights and injected the "religious issue" into the Mexican controversy.

Administration policies were attacked in the house by Rep. George and Harrison, both Democrats of Virginia, and defended by Rep. Wainwright, Republican of New York.

In proposing his peace plan, President Diaz promised to give a "non-partisan administration" in Nicaragua until a "free election" can be held in 1928, under the supervision of the United States.

The statement by Secretary Kellogg that in his opinion, seizure of American property in Mexico may be referred to the general claims commission, was regarded as a virtual confirmation of reports that this government will refer all claims to the commission as a way out of the Mexican problem.

It was pointed out that this view of the functions of the commission is in line with the views of Charles Beecher Warren, who negotiated the claims treaty for this country. President Calles, the Mexican foreign office, and the Mexican embassy here.

Refusal to refer all claims for property damage to the commission it was believed, would be interpreted that the United States was acting in violation of its solemn treaty obligations.

Referring all claims to the commission, it was pointed out, would obviate the necessity of asking the league, or any European tribunal to arbitrate or mediate the land law dispute.

Added significance was given this phase of the dispute with Mexico when it was learned that the Mexican government has involved its first application of the new land laws in a case involving American rights. A report has reached the state department that a permit to drill three wells in Tampico, granted the Huasteca Petroleum company, said to be a subsidiary of Standard Oil, has been revoked.

The revocation was ordered because the company failed to file a request for a concession in lieu of its "fee simple" title to the land, the department said.

While the debate was raging in congress over the administration policies, Secretary Kellogg sent to the senate foreign relations his complete testimony before that committee several days ago. This was done, it was understood, in order to offset the impression that his charges against Mexico consisted solely of the Bolshevik "war scare."

Refusing to make public the testimony, Senator Borah declared that the best way to obtain a "full and satisfactory hearing" would be for Secretary Kellogg to appear before the senate committee at a public hearing. Senator Swanson, ranking Democrat on the committee, agreed with him in making such a proposal, Borah said.

KRATZER OPENS ADDITION TO HIS SALESROOM

"It would take two stadiums of the size of the University of California Memorial Stadium to hold the Buick owners in California, and they would be packed in to overflowing," C. C. Kratzer, local Buick agent, declared yesterday. This is the reason for the construction of the new addition to the Kratzer salesrooms, he stated.

The new display room, were on exhibition yesterday for the first time. Located at Tenth and Bissell avenue, the salesrooms give the local firm a depth of 100 feet by a frontage of 112 and one half feet, a one-half city block.

New garage accommodations built at the same time insure the patronage of Richmond people who have Buick cars. And many of them are owners.

"Business in Richmond during the past year has been extraordinarily good," Kratzer said. "We disposed of 196 carsloads of Buick machines, making an average of a sale a day. Prospects for the new year indicate an even larger volume of business. Our January shipment will be for 30 carsloads."

The official opening of the new salesrooms will be held at a later date, Kratzer stated.
